"So what should we do now?", "Alright smarty pants, what do you think we should do?", "I don't know what we should do, but what's happening now isn't working!" – Creative Problem Solving Presented by the Conflict Resolution Center of Montgomery County

Sometimes the hardest part of a conflict with another person is finding a solution. We do NOT claim to have those solutions, but this workshop is an opportunity to develop skills to find that common ground. Win-win solutions, ones where both people have their needs met, are the ideal solutions, but getting to that point is a challenge. This workshop is an opportunity to find ways to confront that challenge and hopefully overcome it. It is the second part of a three-part series of workshops that look at what conflict is, how we can deal with it, and skills that can be used along the way, but don't worry if you missed the first two, all are welcome.

I can't STAND that person! An introduction to Conflict Management Presented by the Conflict Resolution Center of Montgomery County

We all deal with annoying neighbors, demanding bosses, and significant others, friends, and roommates that get on our last nerve. This workshop is a chance to look at conflict, different methods to approach it, and how conflict can be a positive or a negative force. It is the first part of a three-part series of workshops you can attend to look at what conflict is, how we can deal with it, and skills that can be used along the way.
